OLD BLIND MAN HAD CASH.

Able to Pay Fine, But Court Lets Him Save His Money.

John Burns, white-headed and blind, who claims that he is a veteran of the civil war and says he is here to get through Congress a special act allowing him a pension, escaped a visit to the workhouse yesterday by displaying in the Police Court a bag full of nickels and dimes.

Burns had been arrested in the Soldiers' Temporary Home at 3d and C streets northwest on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

He was accompanied in court by a boy of fifteen, who has been with him for several weeks, leading him from place to place. According to the boy, the prisoner knows a number of members of Congress.

Judge Mulowny, believing the defendant had no means of support, was about to commit him to the workhouse in default of a ten-dollar fine, but Burns drew out a fat purse and emptied the contents on the clerk's desk.

He said that the bag contained $10.75 and that the money had been given to him. He denied that he was a beggar.

In view of the fact that the old man was blind, Judge Mulowny discharged him without fine, but warned him not to be returned to the Police Court on any other charges of disorderly conduct.

HANDBOOK CASES GO OVER.

Defendants Ill and Attorneys Busy in Other Courts.

Four handbook cases which were to have come up for trial in the United States branch of the Police Court yesterday were continued until next Wednesday. Some of the defendants were ill, and in other cases the attorneys pleaded business in other courts. The defendants are Charles Scott, Charles E. Wiles, Ezra Collins and John McConnell.

Assistant United States Attorney General, a postponement of the cases, but said there must be a peremptory order for their trial next week.

Judge Kimball dismissed the jury until after Thanksgiving day, and will not return to Washington until next Monday. Tomorrow and Friday, for there is no holiday in the Police Court, it is assumed that the cases will be tried in the morning, and Saturday Judge Kimball will sit in both the District and the United States courts.

SUES TRACTION COMPANY.

Conductor Wouldn't Take Schuring's Columbia Half Dollar.

Harm Schuring has filed suit for $10,000 damages against the Capital Traction Company, alleging that on August 30 last he gave a conductor on the Georgetown line a Columbia half dollar, receiving tickets and change, and that after he had ridden several blocks the conductor came to him, declaring the coin was a counterfeit, and demanding that he take it back.

Schuring alleges that the conductor refused to let him alight, carrying him several blocks past his destination and turned him over to a crossing policeman, who took him to the fifth street precinct station, he says, the coin was recognized as lawful money and he was discharged.

DATE OF COLLIER'S TRIAL.

Owing to Counsel's Objection Case May Be Postponed.

United States Attorney Baker has notified counsel for John W. Collier, the former patrolman, charged with first degree murder in killing of Police Capt. William H. Matthews, at the latter's office in the fifth precinct, March 5 last, that he will call the case for trial next Monday in Criminal Court No. 1 before Justice Gould.

The trial of the case will probably consume a week.

On the request of United States Attorney Baker Justice Gould has set for trial Monday, December 13, the case of John C. Davis, the member of the bar who is charged with securing $250,000 from investors, who claim that the money was some interest payments as a result of their investments. The indictments charge false pretenses and embezzlement.

As some question of counsel has arisen in this latter case Attorney Henry E. Davis and Noel W. Barksdale having recently withdrawn the Collier case, the trial of the latter go over to the January term.

PANSY DEMENT WANTS TO DIE

PLEADS NOT TO BE SNATCHED FROM FATE SHE SOUGHT.

Blind and Useless, Girl Attempted Suicide-Condition Critical, But Shows Improvement.

Pansy Dement, eighteen years old, who attempted suicide at her home 2226 G street northwest, yesterday afternoon, is still in a critical condition, although somewhat improved this morning, say the physicians at Emergency Hospital, where she is under treatment.

Because her eyesight had failed and she was no longer able to work, Miss Dement had become despondent. This prompted her act.

The young woman was employed in a department store as clerk. Some time ago her sight became so greatly impaired she had to undergo treatment. Her eyes improved so she was able to return to work. The benefit was not permanent and again it became necessary for her to quit work.

She swallowed about ten cents' worth of crocus yesterday afternoon while in her room on the upper floor at her mother's home. Her mother heard her screams and went to her.

The girl was unconscious in a few minutes. She was hurried to the hospital and given treatment.

Regarding consciousness she pleaded with the physicians not to save her, saying she was blind, could work no more and would be unable to assist in the support of her mother and other members of the family.

Miss Dement is younger looking than her eighteen years, has a pretty face, but is not strong.

Her mother and other relatives visited the hospital last night and remained there until a late hour.

RE-ELECTS ITS OFFICERS.

Action of Local Tuberculosis Association Is Heartily Approved.

All of the officers of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis of the District of Columbia were unanimously selected at a meeting of the board of directors held yesterday afternoon in the association's building, 923 H street northwest. The officers are: Gen. George M. Sternberg, U. S. A., president; William H. Baldwin, vice president; Gen. William H. Forward, treasurer, and Miss Ruth Rizer, secretary.

The re-election of last year's officers of the association is a signal of the hearty approval of the policies outlined for the future work of the association as indicated in the reports of different committees and the address of the president at the annual meeting last Tuesday night.

Among the directors present at the meeting were Dr. William C. Rives, Dr. E. C. Schroeder, Dr. J. D. Morgan, Rev. Dr. E. E. Wiseman, George S. Wilson and Miss Mabel L. Rong.
